A party has been sent to the Northwest or some other all-weather route for Chicago, where they will take the M. & N. Central R. R. for London, Toronto and Montreal. The Michigan Central route was selected because it is the best for from Chicago to these points. This line runs express trains daily from Chicago to London (10 hours) and two others, the 2:15 and 5:15 p.m. trains, are accompanied by sleeping cars. A ladies sleeping car runs from Chicago to the 4 p.m. train, and the other two have the ladies cars to "Canadian" trains. Through tickets are on sale to all these points, and baggage will be checked through.

Is Consumption Contagious?

If our medical journals were to announce the steady approach to this country—say from China—of an ill-understood, painful and usually fatal malady, which if once established among us would certainly kill half a million of our citizens every year and ultimately carry off one in every five of the entire population, it is safe to presume that the announcement would not be calmly received. As one man, physicians not less strenuously than laymen, we should demand the most rigorous quarantine against the infected country. No effort would be accounted too heroic, no precaution too costly, to shield our country from so disastrous an invasion. And if there were any doubt as to the specific nature of the threatened plague or of the mode of its transmission or infection, neither our medical and sanitary societies nor the Government would rest until competent commissions were sent to investigate the matter. It would be almost criminal indifference on the part of medical and sanitary authorities to neglect to make a concerted and persistent effort to discover the causes and habits of the plague, and how to protect the community from its ravages when its victims were attacked.

Would the urgency of the case be diminished in any respect by the circumstance that the supposed invasion had already become a fact accomplished? At first thought, any one would reply: Not in the least; rather on the contrary; for the evil in the latter case would be actual, not threatened merely, and the loss or saving of half a million lives a matter of the gravest national importance. Yet it is a singular fact that, while we should be thrown into a panic if half a million lives were threatened with a new disease, we accept as inevitable, almost with indifference, the constant killing of that number of people every year by an old and fatal malady. And our medical authorities tell us, without a tinge of professional pride, that they really do not know positively how consumption is induced and transmitted, or whether it is communicated from the sick to the well or not; and, worse yet, they confess without hesitating that they do not contemplate any special or general effort to have such important questions critically investigated!

When half a million of discontented natives of Europe throng to our shores in a single year we do not fail to appreciate the importance of the gain, both immediate and prospective. When a larger number of our own citizens are cut off untidily by a disease which, while it destroys them, transmits a legacy of sickness and too often early death to their descendants, we mourn our individual losses, but make no adequate effort to put an end to the national loss by urging or aiding the scientific determination of its conditions, causes and remedies. Already one in every five of our population dies of consumption, and the indications are that the conditions of our civilization tend to increase the death rate from this cause. If the disease is infectious, as many believe, the multiplication of cases may sooner or later reach a point—if its progress is unchecked—at which a perpetuation of our race and the civilization developed by it will become impossible. Other races and civilizations have disappeared, leaving no explanation of the secret of their decline. Others, we have good reasons for believing, have been exterminated by plagues peculiar to them, developed, in all probability, by something peculiar to their modes of living.

That there is any imminent danger of so disastrous a result to our race and civilization from the increase of consumption, no one but an alarmist would suppose; still it remains an impending possibility, more especially if there is any error in the common belief that the disease is not contagious or infectious.—Scientific American.

A party of gentlemen were shooting in the neighborhood of Blackwood, near Edinburgh, when a valuable dog was bitten by a viper. The poor animal almost immediately showed symptoms of the venomous bite of the viper, in fainting, sickness and occasional vomiting. On the following day the keeper visited the same spot, and discovered the reptile basking on a heap of stones, a number of young vipers around her. When he approached her he could hardly see the mother opening her mouth, and the young vipers crawling at. When killed, eleven young ones made their appearance, alive and active, and of the same color as a mackerel. The length of the viper was two feet six inches, and the young vipers six inches long.—London Times.

Larry Holman has more of an army than is generally supposed, or than is really good for it. In time of peace he commands 46,277 men and officers, with 7,941 horses and 294 field and siege guns, and on a war footing 103,683 men, 15,800 horses and 210 guns. The militia reserve comprise 120,000 men.

ADVANTAGES OF THE BRITISH NORTH-WEST.

By our exchanges we observe that Dakota and other of the Western States are most undesirable places for immigrants to settle in. Destructive frosts, cyclones and atmospheric disturbances are of such frequent occurrence, and so devastating in their unceasing turbulence, that neither life nor property is at any time nor in any place safe. Their destructive incursions are everywhere observable and marked by the entire demolition of cities and towns, and the loss of the lives of many citizens. Manitoba and the North-West are as paradises compared with these unhappy and unfortunate States. This state of affairs is evidently becoming better known to foreigners, judging from the immense influx of people into Manitoba and the North-West among whom are many who had taken up land in Dakota and many other western and south-western states. There is room here for all, and the safety of person and property is assured.

GOVERNMENT SUSTAINED.

Mr. Norquay has been sustained by a vote of eighteen to eight, three being absent two of whom are slight supporters of Mr. Norquay's Government, and an Oppositionist.

This sturdy is an answer to the groundless and silly charges of our Gift contemporaries who a few weeks since asserted that many who had been returned as independent and quasi supporters of Mr. Norquay would at the last moment desert him. On the contrary, so defensible and commendable were and are his measures in the interests of Manitoba, that his supporters are more attached than ever to him and his Government and are determined to support him in all measures which have, as they are assured they will have, for their object the advancement and promotion of the best interests of the people of Manitoba. We congratulate Mr. Norquay upon this victory achieved over interested lobbyists and the enemies of good government and the welfare of the country.

THE QUEEN'S HEALTH.

NERVOUS AND HYSTERICAL.

(SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE TIMES)

LONDON, May 28.—The Queen's condition is now known to be such as to warrant alarm even on the part of her physicians and her personal attendants. The character of the illness has not been well defined beyond the point that it is of nervous type and not readily controlled by ordinary remedies. Her condition has been such that for days it has been difficult to get from herself any sufficient description of her symptoms to enable her physicians to act intelligently. Her Majesty's nervousness has become so extreme that she is frequently hysterical and sometimes almost beyond control and bordering on delirium.

On her journey to Balmoral no cheering or other exciting demonstration of any kind will be allowed, and special police arrangements have been made with the intention of seeing that no popular greeting of any sort shall be given at any of the stations along the line.

The results of the accident to the Queen's knee through her fall at Windsor Castle are charged with her present illness. She has for years suffered from gout, as a result of liberal living and insufficient exercise, and the membranes of her joints have probably become more or less inflamed. The knee sprain while troubling some enough in itself, was only secondary to the joint to which the hip joint was subjected by the fall. This jarred directly sciatic troubles from which the royal patient has suffered terribly. After all lighter medical relief had been tried, the physicians were compelled to resort to hypodermic injections of morphia in order to secure to Her Majesty any relief whatever. On many occasions after great pain and loss of sleep she has been temporarily quite beyond control. The fall, sprain and inflammation allowed the joint, whose existence and tendency has long been known, to ascend to the hip where the sympathy of the sciatic nerve was at once excited. Usually in persons who, in other respects, do not possess excellent health, this is the fatal point in the gout.

Treat the physicians believe this may be the case with the Queen, and that they fear the almost immediate danger of fatal result is beyond question. Many minor facts tend to corroborate the impression, not the least of which is John Brown's unaffected grief after the fall on the stairway and his evident fear that the accident might have a more serious outcome than could possibly have been foreseen from any information on the subject which was given to the public. The real trouble as outlined in this despatch has been carefully kept out of sight.

FELINE DEVELOPMENT.

It seems to me from the many articles I meet with in scientific journals as well as in the general press, and from my own observations, too, that the cat family are constantly growing in the general estimation in the high qualities of sagacity and affection. In fact, I believe they stand better than they did forty years ago—all the obnoxious of Mrs. Swishelm, the champion cat-hater, to the contrary notwithstanding. Here is our "Nig," for instance, manifesting a trait altogether new, as it seems to me—in this: he likes to ride as well as a coach dog. He cries almost every day to ride to town in the buggy, and is always ready to go out with the team when we are hauling in hay or grain or husking corn, provided he can ride. If one will hold him in his arms he also delights to ride on horseback. His pleasure is manifest in a remarkable degree whenever he is allowed the luxury of a ride, either in any kind of vehicle or on horseback, and his cries are altogether pitiful when he is told that he cannot go. This singular habit seems to have been a natural one with him, for he never had any special training in that direction. While cats are ordinarily frightened out of their wits by any attempt to give them such a ride, our "Nig" is never so happy as when he is thus indulged.—American Naturalist.

WAGER $500.00

To Whom it May Concern.

During the thunderstorm in August, 1882, the County of Mollis, Ont., alone suffered to the extent of from $50,000 to $85,000 in the destruction of dwellings, barns and out-buildings. Not one of the structures consumed was furnished with rods from the Globe Lightning Rod Company of London, although there are thousands and thousands of feet of our Rods erected upon the farm houses and barns in Mollis, Ont., and over 10,000 being erected within the city limits alone during the past two years, the statements of a few witnesses to the contrary notwithstanding. The Globe Company, in order to show their confidence in the goods manufactured and sold by them, are prepared to place the sum of $500.00 in the hands of His Worship the Mayor (or any other responsible citizen in London,) against a similar amount of deposited by any person or persons who can prove that a building provided with suitable rods from the Globe Company has been struck during either of the recent thunderstorms which have visited Western Ontario. The money to be divided between the different charitable institutions in London. Orders by mail promptly attended to.

LONGFELLOW.

Some of the Quaker Visitors He Was Won-to Entertain.

(Prof. Boyson, in the Christian Union.)

During the Centennial year we were sitting together one beautiful afternoon, on his piazza, smoking and talking. While we were in the midst of our conversation I observed two men and two women coming toward us across the lawn. They were obviously New England country folks returning from the Centennial Exhibition. The men had the slow, deliberate, rustic walk, and were dressed in ill-fitting broadcloth, the very look of which made one perceive. The women, who were leading the way, had an appearance of pluck and enterprise, as if they were determined to conquer the modest diffidence of their companions. Mr. Longfellow was sitting with his back to the street, and did not observe them until they were within a yard of the piazza. He looked a little surprised, but arose and saluted the intruders with his wonted courtesy.

"Be you the poet Longfellow?" asked one of the women, in a voice that was incredibly melodious.

"Yes, I am Mr. Longfellow," he answered.

There was an awkward pause, during which the visitors stared at the poet with unabashed glances as if he had been a Centennial relic on exhibition.

"Now, how old a man might you be?" queried the other female, abruptly.

"I am 69 years old, madam."

"Pardon me you look considerably older," said one of them, looking up always to Mr. Longfellow's face with averted air.

"My looks may belie me. I am no older."

I could not but wonder at the extreme familiarity with which he answered these blunt questions, showing no annoyance in his face and no resentment. And when, finally, at their request, he conducted the party through the house, he submitted with the same gentle courtesy to a cross examination regarding his family and personal affairs which would have tried the patience of the archangel Gabriel. When, at the end of half an hour, he returned, apologizing for his absence, I made a remark which was, perhaps, a little disrespectful to his late edition.

"They meant no disrespect to me by their questions," he answered, with that beautiful gentleness which was so characteristic of his manner. "It is perfectly proper, where they come from, to interest one's self in the personal affairs of everybody."

"But it must be a great inconvenience to you," I observed, "to be so frequently disturbed by such excursions."

"Well, during the present year I admit it has been a little trying. Nevertheless I always dislike sending a man away from home who has come out here for the purpose of seeing me or my house. Of course I have to do it occasionally, but it is always disagreeable to me. Those women whom you saw were good staunch New England types, and I like them in spite of their lack of tact and their abrupt manners. They are good, hard, working women, who make good wives and good mothers. And yet the other day, I was greatly amused at one of the same class who came here with a large basket—whether she had anything to sell I did not ascertain—apparently for the purpose of telling me that she had read 'Evangeline' from beginning to end, and, 'and,' she added, 'there be'n't many folks can say that.' I am convinced now that she had no intention of being rude to me; she was merely awkward and nervous, and said what she did not mean to say. I asked her if she had found the reading of 'Evangeline' such a dreadful task. The question seemed to surprise her; she grew embarrassed, and showed plainly that she had no recollection of having said anything uncomplimentary."

Things We Oughten.

It is both the curse and the blessing of our American life that we are never quite content. We all expect to go somewhere before we die, and have a better time when we get there than we have at home. The home of our life is dissident. We say we will work to-day, and then we will enjoy ourselves. But we find it just as the clock has expressed it. "When I was a boy," he said, "I wanted some things, and I was a dissident; I thought, 'When I was a man, I would be a dissident, but I would be a man.'"

Samuel Butler says he has killed two thousand Indians with his own hands. How the United States army must be busy!

A Georgia paper tells of a calf that walked into a house, went into the bed room, laid down on a bed, where it took a long nap, and then went out. The calf was probably the son of the editor.

—New York Commercial Advertiser.

ETIQUETTE OF INTRODUCTIONS.

It is often said that great caution ought to be exercised in introducing people to each other, but a somewhat exaggerated importance has been attached to this point. As a rule, you are not likely to meet in any house where you yourself visit any person whom you would not be willing to know. It is a graceful courtesy, however, when a gentleman expresses a wish to be presented to a lady to tell her of it and ask her permission in advance. There is often something in the very fact that a man has desired to know her which would incline a woman favorably toward him. A man is introduced to a lady; of two ladies or two gentlemen the younger is presented to the elder or the least distinguished to the better known. It is always well to give two strangers a slight hint on which a conversation can be based. If you are introduced to Mr. Hardy, it is a name, no more; but if your hostess adds, "Mr. Hardy, of whose novels you are so fond," you at once understand the value of your opportunity.

It is better to present "Mr. Browne, from New York," than merely Mr. Browne. The name of the city may recall the thought of some common trite; at least it gives you a score of suggestions for the first conversation, which, between shy people, is often an effort. If you know that your interlocutor is an author, an artist, a musician you are thus furnished a key to whatever is most interesting in his range of thought and experience. It would have been hard to forgive a hostess who would have presented Trelawney to you without letting you know it was the Trelawney of Byron and Shelley; or Severn, without any suggestion that it was the Severn whom Keats loved. One likes to know even who has been neighbor to the rose.

It is rudeness, when some one asks to be presented to you, not to use your best efforts to make the conversation pleasant. Merely to bow and say good evening is not sufficient. The small coin of social intercourse is imperatively called for. Especially when you are the hostess and a guest has been brought by a friend all your social tact would be well employed to make the newcomer feel welcome and at home. In nothing is the very breeding of which true kindness is the very soul more surely tested than in the reception of a guest who perceives herself to have come at an inopportune time.

Destroyers of Contagion.

The Boston Journal of Chemistry says: Modern science has let in a flood of light upon the causes of many illnesses, and the nature of the contagia upon which their propagation depends. Not only has the cause of disease been traced to agents external to the body, but the exact forms of these disturbing organisms has been pointed out. They consist of minute particles, probably in most or all cases of a vegetable nature; they are therefore non-gaseous and in no respect comport themselves like gaseous bodies.

The best method to disinfect clothing is by the use of heat. Experiment has shown that no form of contagia can withstand a temperature of 220 degrees Fahrenheit; therefore, clothing placed in a box two hours, with dry heat above that of boiling water, is thoroughly disinfected; or it may be soaked in boiling water with the same result. Chlorine is a powerful body, and is in ordinary cases an effective disinfectant. It is, however, inferior to sulphurous acid; this is the most valuable agent we have, but unfortunately it is not safe in inexperienced hands. A room in which a case of infectious disease has been placed can be thoroughly cleaned by burning a little sulphur in the absence of the inmates. The sulphurous acid is a gas exceedingly disagreeable and irritable, and great caution is necessary in its use.

Potassiumate of potash is a true disinfectant having oxidizing powers of high capability, but it must be used in much larger quantities than are usually employed. Its high cost is a bar to its free use, and it is not clearly seen how it can ever become much cheaper. Chloride of lime, freely used, is a good disinfectant; but when it is placed in vessels in small quantities in sick-rooms or sparingly sprinkled in drains, it has but slight influence as a destroyer of contagion. Carbolic acid is a cheap and good disinfectant, but it must be used in large amounts to be useful. Several of the metallic salts have powerful antiseptic properties; for example, the protosulphate of iron. This salt, in strong solution, is a valuable agent, and is worthy of notice. At this point it should be stated that carbolic acid and the metallic salts, used in small quantities, are preservative agents, and may actually prolong the life of contagium by preventing its destruction through natural processes.

There are numerous patented "antiseptics" and "disinfectants" which are perfectly worthless so far as any influence upon septic germs is concerned. It is very important that heads of families, and especially physicians, should clearly understand what is required, when selecting an agent for practice.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1883.

LOCAL NEWS.

The Rock Lake Herald has been suspended. Moose Jaw is to have a post office on June 1st.

CITY Engineer Brownlee went east to Winnipeg to-day.

THERE are seven hundred Indians encamped around Maple Creek.

A PERSON from St. Catharines, Ont., has been appointed postmaster at Moose Jaw.

Mr. M. McTaggart, of Portage la Prairie, was in town yesterday, and left today for Chicago.

SUPR. BROWN, Western Division of the C. P. R., is in the city stopping at the Grand View.

THE first alarm that ever illuminated the streets of our city applied for lodging at the Police Station last night.

ANDREW BOYD and Geo. Flegg arrived in the city today en route to Regina, having in charge "Rhode Island" No. 60 locomotive, said to be one of the finest on the C. P. R.

At the Grand View.—George H. Beynon, Jos. T. Dumouchel, Minnesota; U. Still, Myers; A. Jardine, W. H. Casey, William Brown, Winnipeg.

It is understood that a Catholic priest is to be sent to Moose Jaw shortly. His Grace Archbishop Tache recently authorized a gentleman in that place to select a site suitable for the erection of a church.

THE well known grey mare, "Lucy," will not be raffled until Saturday evening, at the Star and Garter Hotel, instead of Wednesday, as was stated yesterday. A good chance for those of a sporting turn of mind.

MESSRS. Heliyer Bros. have purchased the office of Bowerman & Center, and are having it moved to Rosser Avenue, next door to H. Meredith & Co.'s establishment, where they will carry on their insurance business in connection with Customs Brokerage.

Geo. LEASON, grain merchant, reports a great revival in the grain trade. He has made several large sales of oats this week, and is at present corresponding with several lumber firms regarding the sale of some thousands of bushels more.

THE lands belonging to the York Farmers' Colonization Society are advertised for settlement. The Colony is situated within a short distance of Whitehead station, an embryo city on the C. P. R., and is easy of access, and already contains a settlement of well-to-do English and Canadian farmers. The unparalleled inducements offered by the Society insure a speedy settlement and rapid development of their lands. There is any amount of wood throughout the colony, and the water is said to be superior to any in the N. W. T. Second homesteads can be obtained in the settlement. Maps and pamphlets giving information concerning the lands can be procured by applying to the officers and agents of the Society.

POLICE COURT.

T. T. Atkinson, George Lockhart, J. H. Brownlee, E. McCoskie, F. G. A. Alderson, Dr. McDermid and Dr. Dietling came up before the bench to-day for violation of the health by-law. They paid costs.

Canadians vs. Americans.

The Canadian-American, of Minneapolis pay the following high compliment to young Canadian business men. It says—"One Chicago wholesale house employs forty travellers thirty-eight of whom are Canadians by birth. Young Canucks who have gone through the unsentimental mill in their own land are in high favour with business men, not only because of the thoroughness of the training received at home, but also for the reason that they are generally trustworthy, energetic, steady and temperate."

A Good Farm.

We had the pleasure of visiting the farm belonging to J. E. Woodworth, yesterday, which is in the suburbs of Brandon, being situated on the S.E. 1/4 sec. 13, tp. 10, range 19. This farm is beautifully situated, and is surrounded by a substantial wire fence with a fine row of maple trees planted all around it, which are nicely leaved out and are growing finely. One hundred acres of this quarter section has been sown in wheat this season by Mr. H. T. Logan, and a prettier sown field can scarce be found hereabouts. Mr. Logan says the soil is excellent for farming, and being very convenient to good water and having good hay land on it, makes it a valuable piece of land. Mr. Woodworth has taken great pains with this farm and a dwelling house and buildings alone remain to make it a model Manitoba farm.

Mr. Durst moved into his new store to-day.

The convent is now about ready for occupation.

THE floor under the rear portion of Mes H. Meredith & Co.'s store, on the corner of Rosser Avenue and 6th street, has been slowly giving way, and working men are to-day employed raising the building on jacks.

Wm. Taylor arrived by today's train from Regina and stopped at the Beaubien House. After dinner he went to the store of Scott & Paisley to make some purchases and put his hand in his pocket to give payment when he found that his purse was gone. He had it in the hip pocket of his pants and supposes it to have dropped out on the seat in the railway carriage. He telegraphed to the conductor to try and recover it.

In compliance with the petition of the Underwriters Association to the City Council regarding the enforcement of the Fire By-law, the Fire Inspector began to-day to notify parties having tin chimneys and others of a temporary and combustible nature, to have them removed and to build chimneys of a more substantial substance and less liable to catch fire.

Off For China.

A youth with a half-gallon of fire water in his voice, and with an alleged diamond breast pin but no shirt collar, was riding a quadruped which he stated had done the mile in 2:10, down Rosser this afternoon, and when reaching Fourth street the hat rack, riled by his repeated efforts to get it to attempt the mile at racing gait, quit terra firma with its hind feet, and sent the inebriated youth on a futile hunt for the overland route to China.

Rifle Club.

A successful and enthusiastic meeting was held last evening in G. Ripple & Co.'s store for the purpose of organizing a rifle club. Matters of importance were discussed and minutely explained. The gentlemen present signed a paper pledging themselves to forward the work at all hazards. A committee was appointed to examine the different points for a range. The next meeting will be held at the same place on Tuesday, 5th June, at 8 p.m., for the election of officers. All gentlemen interested are requested to attend the next meeting. The club has the start and "all desperation" is the motto of the promoters. Any information will be cheerfully given by Capt. Wastie, Ensign Bliss, Messrs. Ripple & Caswell, Paul & Sanderson.

York Farmers' Colony.

Our reporter called on Messrs. Russell & Cooper, the agents for this popular colony, to obtain accurate information with reference to the settlement and prospects of the colony for the present season. He was informed that already a large number of settlers had passed through their office en route, and that the lands are being rapidly taken up. Much satisfaction is felt by all who reach the colony with the quality of the land and not one has returned to the agents' office having bad reports. A stage has been established by the company running from Whitehead every Tuesday and a ferry has been built over the Qu'Appelle river, thus affording the settler every facility for reaching his destination. About one hundred and fifty settlers have located in the colony during the present season. Messrs. Russell & Cooper will be glad to furnish all information to intending settlers.

A Thrilling Runaway Escape.

Last evening as the city whistle was telling the hour of six, a country farmer drew up at a certain hotel in the city and having felt pained by inhaling an over dose of Prairie dust determined to quench his thirst. With that object in view having left a Railway man in charge of his steed entered the hotel. The Railway man finding the time hanging heavy and wishing to occupy the balance of it to some advantage invited a friend, a contractor and builder, to accompany him whilst he dined a portion of the city with the farmer's steed and hickory. They accordingly started and waited about rounding the block and getting upon a down grade the steed thought it was necessary to put on brakes and did so by planting his hind heels against the Dash board. This proving ineffectual to retard the speed but rather to accelerate it. The Railway man seeing that there was danger of telegraphing an approaching day concluded that discretion was the better part of valor and with professional agility stood over the seat of the buck board and clonked safely upon his center of gravity in the middle of the street leaving the contractor in sole possession of the now ungovernable rig, but who with commendable courage with horse in hand cried "whoa" that it was now determined upon destruction and would not heed the command, and having jumped the tract ran into an elevation and dumped that contractor rather forcibly and unceremoniously into the dust and after careering through streets finally came to a halt in front of Mr. Gage's Livery stable. Now that Railway man aims to shun all responsibility for damages while the contractor wished that Railway man was gone into Graham flour before ever he invited to a drive in an unknown rig. That farmer wants to know who is going to pay him for those broken shafts.—We recommend the appointment of a commissioner.

The Queen's Condition.

The announcement that Queen Victoria's condition is such as to excite alarm even among her physicians will be received with feelings of the deepest regret throughout the world, and nowhere will the feeling of sympathy with Her Majesty and earnest hope that she may be soon restored to perfect health, be more generally expressed than in the Canadian Northwest. The general celebration of the Queen's birthday, but a few days ago, showed in an unmistakable manner the wide-spread sentiments of loyalty that exist in our midst. Her Majesty's illness is said to be of a nervous character, so much so that at times she becomes hysterical and even bordering on delirium. The cause of her present illness is said to have been her recent fall by which she received a severe jar causing sciatic troubles, to which her present condition is ascribable. It is to be hoped that under the skillful care of her physicians, she will be returned to health at an early date. The prayer of millions will ascend for her recovery.

RELIGION IN RUSSIA.

Disaffection Among all Classes with the Greek Church

The Berlin correspondent of the London Telegraph writes: Most persons think of the Russian people as a body of some seventy-millions of peasants devoted to the Czar and patiently submitting to the scourge of corrupt bureaucracy, and a million of conspirators, seclergy sympathized with by every man and woman of a certain education and aspiring toward a higher culture. To close observer, it is no secret that the religious sentiments of large classes of the population no longer find satisfaction in the ceremonies of the orthodox church—that the breach between the ambitious worldly grasping monks who monopolize all the good benefices of the church, and the parish priests, steeping in poverty and ignorance, is greater than ever, and that the lay element is beginning to hate the bigotry of the upper hierarchy as much as it despises the ignorance and squalor of the parochial clergy. Pamphlets and articles on the subject have however, lately appeared in Russia and Germany, among which Baron Von der Bruggen's account in the Deutsche Rundschau is most likely to interest English readers as it deals with these movements, which bear much resemblance to the means by which Protestantism has lately been propagated in Italy and Spain, and possesses many features of Methodist revival. Of these movements one owes its origin as far as can be made out, to an Englishman, Lord Radstock and another to German Lutherans while the genesis of the third can net with certainty be made out.

To begin with the last of the three, an evangelical spirit of inquiry is said to be manifesting itself in the northern districts of the Ural mountains. The peasantry is no longer disposed to content itself with the outward performances prescribed to the orthodox. It anxiously buys new testaments, if it can read, or listens to the texts read by others, and expounded by everyone according to his own lights. It leaves off attending church services and seeks edification at home.

Something more is known of a propaganda in the south, which appears to have originated with the German colonists in the Government of Cherson, who were in the habit of meeting together to pray, to expound the Bible, and to sing hymns and psalms. These prayer meetings, or "Hetsundren," soon attracted the Russian peasants. They imitated their German neighbors, and so widely did this practice spread that "Stundisms" has become a denomination, and the number of "Stundisten" in the district of Kieff is alone calculated by thousands. The cause of the rapidity with which the new faith and observance have supplanted the old is not difficult to discover. It lies in the gospel, which was a perfect novelty to the Russian peasant. Had not the larger minded Emperors Alexander I. and II. tolerated the publication and sale of Russian New Testaments, many more years might have elapsed before lower classes in Russia could have discovered the knowledge which the church had carefully hidden from them. The Sermon on the Mount, the whole life and image of the Savior, came upon them in the shape of a revelation, quite as much as it ever did to Hottentots, Equimaux or South Sea Islanders. Von der Bruggen relates a remarkable circumstance which he gathered from the lips of a landed proprietor. One day the latter heard from one of his men, who had ridden as fast as he could to bring the news, that a great brawl was going on in a neighboring village. Cars full of "Stundisten" had arrived and were being attacked with cudgels and stones. The country gentleman rode up to the spot and found that these Muscovite Methodists had slowly driven up to the village and through the streets singing psalms. These were the people whom the priest had always held up as enemies of God and the church, and frequenters of taverns and pot houses. Hence the new-comers were received with scoffs and jeers, and ordered to depart. As they did not obey, the crowd proceeded to hustle them about and to throw stones at them. The converts did not defend themselves or give blow for blow. They avoided angry words and calmly continued to chant. The narrator arrived in time to prevent worse from happening and to establish order. He witnessed how more than one of the orthodox peasants was so forcibly struck by the behavior of the Salvationists, that they may to call them, as to fall on their knees and look after them as if they had been the real saints of his own church. Two days after the whole village had gone over to the sect of Standists.
